A fair in the streets

Upland street fair has 'em

Dancing in the Streets

They were dancing in the streets in Upland. Well, almost.

But the city's first street fair last weekend helped kick off the summer for residents.

The Upland Recreation Department and the Downtown Merchants Association sponsored the combination fair, Teddy bear parade and chili cook-off.

"The people in Upland were looking for a big summer event and this sounded like the thing to do," said Chris Worland, recreation department coordinator.

The family-fun activities centered around the downtown kiosk.

The Upland Police Department shut the downtown streets off to motorists so 30 different craftsmen could set up booths. More than 500 people stopped by the fair throughout the day.

And if a mini-parade and games weren't enough to start off the summer season, downtown merchants decided to spice the day up a bit more.

The merchants association sponsored its annual chili cook-off.

"We wanted to get the community involved in the downtown area. We've had the chili contest for years but we thought we'd combine it with the new street fair," said Darrol Irvin, downtown businessman.

Eight cooks volunteered their best recipes for judges to scrutinize.

Chili lovers and the adventurous lined up for a taste of old family recipes and new concoctions.

First place went to Dave and Cathy Andre for their fiery dish. Second place went to Lisa Creek and third place was given to Gail Bradford.

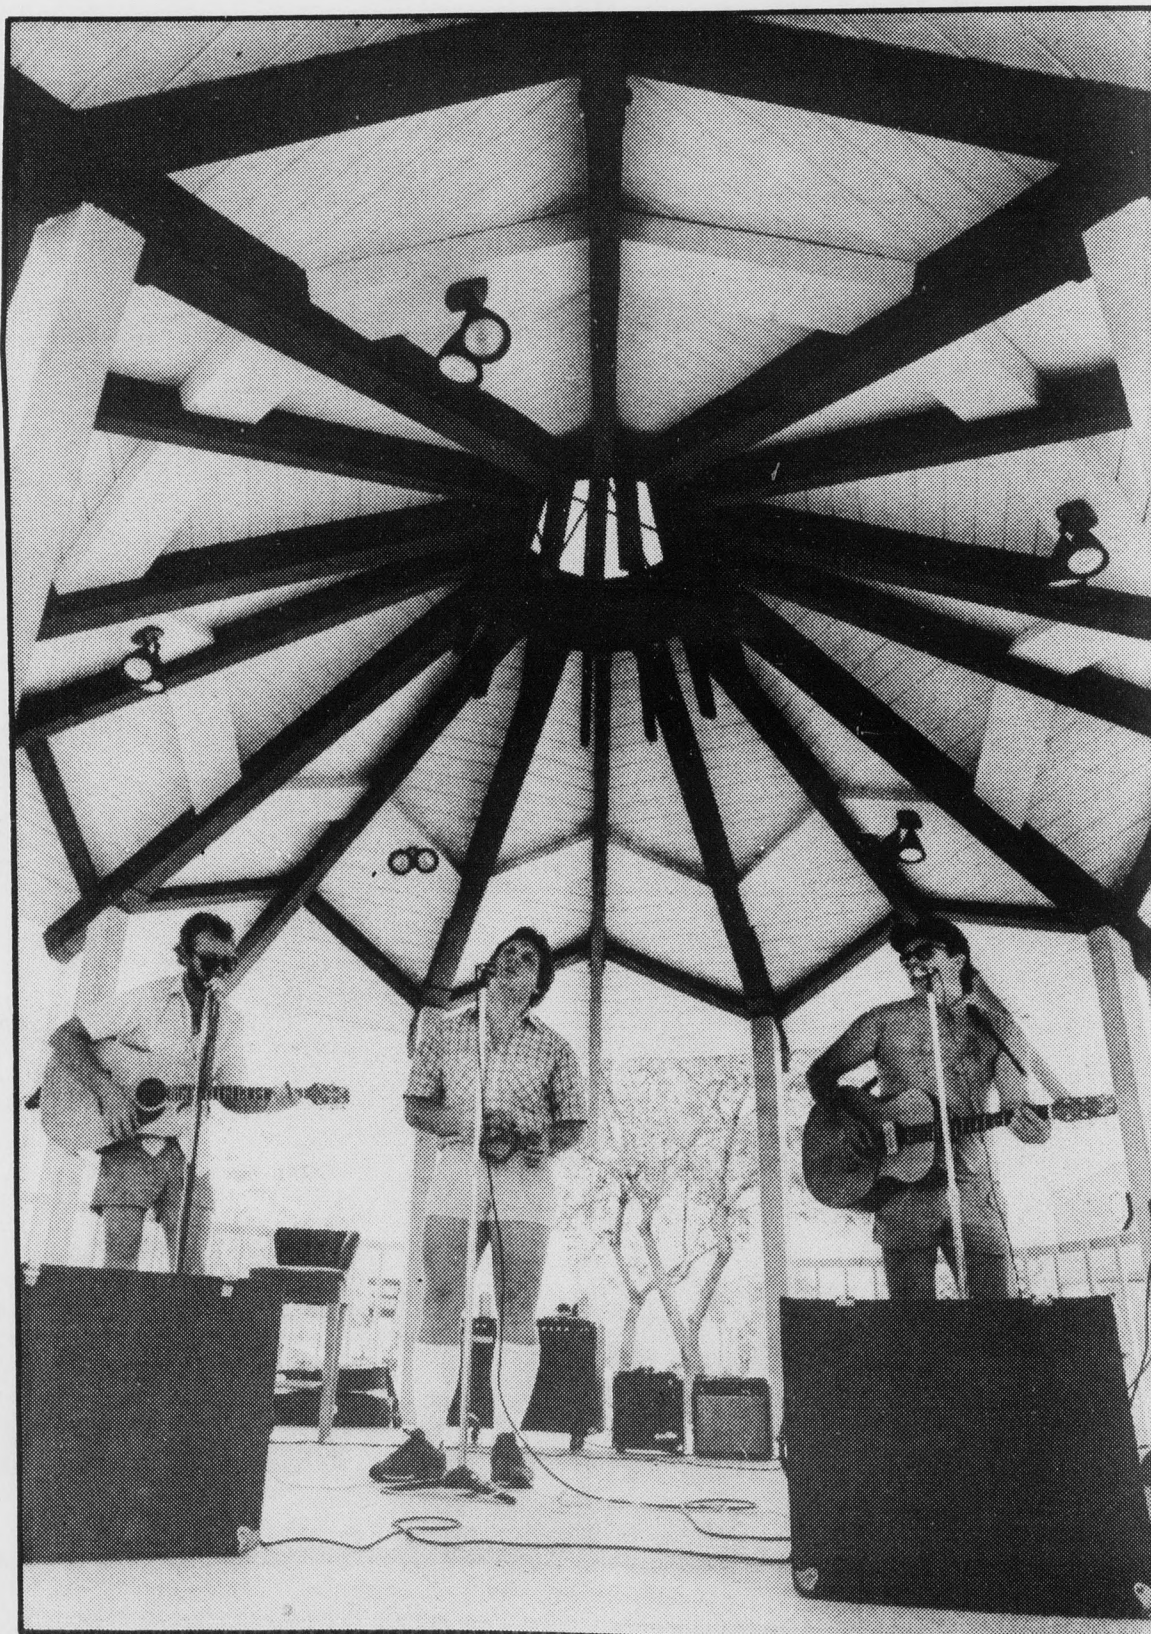

But the apparent crowd pleaser of the day was the Teddy bear parade.

About 100 Upland residents and bear lovers of all ages competed for titles in several categories — largest, smallest, oldest, most comical and best dressed.

The bears and their owners pranced down Second Avenue, right through the middle of downtown, to the delight of onlookers.

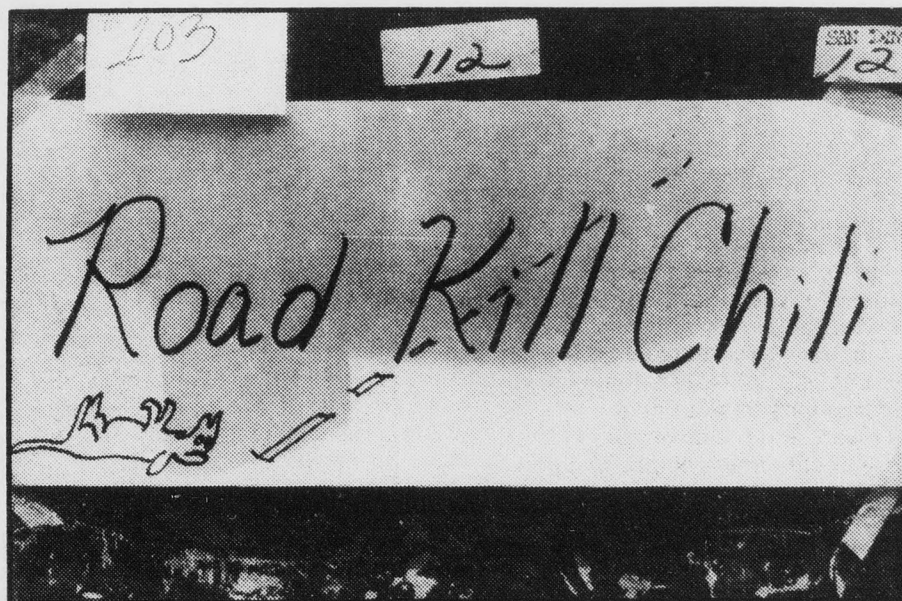

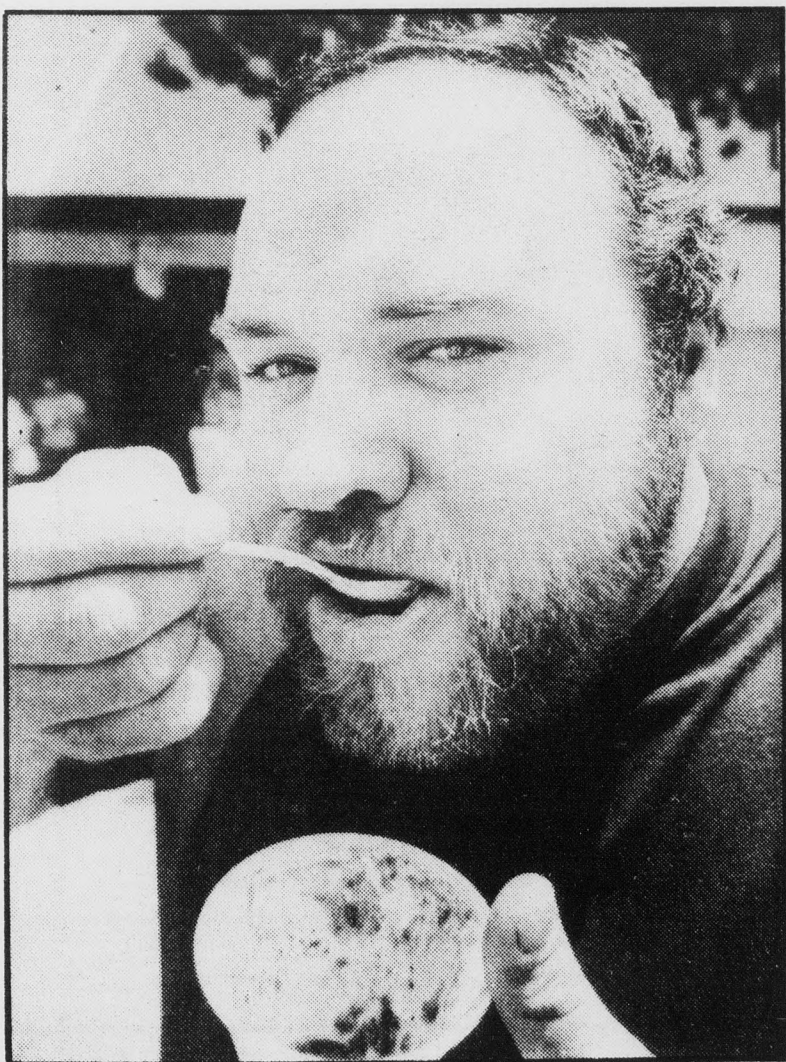

Although the bears were supposed to dress for the occasion, many of the owners also showed up in festive manner.

Winners in each category, according to Worland, were Maya Smith and Linnea Caldera, largest; Debbie Cone, smallest; Suzanne Bratton, oldest; Jason Wessely and Alicia Lira, most comical; and Brian Barry, best dressed.

Officers Mark Ames, left, and Steve Brownell and resident Claire Hunnicutt received honors from the American Legion recently for their assistance to Upland residents.

Heroism, quick thinking earn honors for trio

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Two Upland police officers and a resident who works in the city received honors for outstanding performance this year from the 25th District American Legion at its 13th annual Law and Order Banquet and Awards Ceremony.

Officer Steve Brownell received the Award of Valor, officer Mark Ames received the Award of Merit and Claire Hunnicutt was given the Citizen's Award, said Police Chief Coy Estes.

Brownell received the highest honor for controlling a distraught man who allegedly shot his son in the face and set fire to his Upland home last February.

When the man doused Brownell with gasoline and threatened him with a knife, he drew his revolver, but did not fire. The man ran away with the gas can and matches and Brownell disarmed him with his nightstick and arrested him. He then used the garden hose to help control the fire.

"His good judgment prevented a potentially justifiable police shooting, and resulted in the capture of the suspect without injury," Estes said.

The Award of Merit went to Ames for administering cardiopulmonary resuscitation to a 67-year-old man lying unconscious on his living room floor, the victim of an apparent heart attack or stroke.

During the CPR the victim regained consciousness and bit Ames on his upper and lower lips severely enough that the officer sought medical treatment, Estes said. Ames' action probably saved the man's life, the police chief added.

Hunnicutt, branch manager for Pomona Federal Savings & Loan at 20 E. Foothill Blvd., was named citizen of the year by the local American Legion for her part in thwarting the theft of a man's savings.

The Pomona resident alerted police when she noticed that an 88-year-old customer tried to withdraw $8,000 in cash shortly after he had gotten the same amount in a cashier's check. Hunnicutt had noticed that one of the four people later arrested had come in with

Charges against nursing home owners called an 'overreaction'

By Kimberly Heinrichs

An attorney for Upland's Elizabeth Enterprises said the wrong people are being charged with criminal violations in a Los Angeles nursing home.

Last week the Los Angeles City Attorney's office filed 31 counts of criminal violations against the company's owner Barrett Speck and Good Hope Convalescent Home operator Nola Nell Turrell.

Bob Gerst, who represents the Upland company which owns 21 nursing homes throughout the state, said Speck and Turrell are not criminally responsible for what went on in the Los Angeles nursing home.

"Apparently they're trying to hold Barrett and the administrator responsible for activities they did not do," Gerst said. "There's no way Barrett, for example, is responsible for the carelessness of the employees."

Gerst said his own investigation into the charges that Good Hope's patients received improper care in unsanitary conditions is not complete. But he said that even if the charges are true, they should have been handled within the state health department's civil fining system, rather than through the criminal justice system.

"They (Speck and Turrell) have civil responsibility for damages, etc., but they should not go to jail," he said. "I don't think that the charges are that serious."

The city attorney's office has accused the nursing home of allowing patients to lie in their own urine and feces — creating bed sores — and of delaying treatment of some injuries, allowing them to worsen. At least 20 patients were affected, according to Deputy City Attorney Gary Rowse.

Gerst, who called the charges "an overreaction," said that he Stan Swieca, longtime head of the Upland School district's transportation department, will be finishing up his last paper work soon as he retires.

Boss of Upland schools' buses never missed a day in 18 years

By Kimberly Heinrichs

After 18 years of never being absent, Stan Swieca, transportation director for the Upland School District, is retiring.

Swieca, 69, who has headed the department for the last 15 years, was driving the buses himself when needed up until last March.

"Drivers always know that they can call in sick and someone will take care of it — and it's usually me," he said.

Never taking a sick day is a rare feat for any employee, let alone one who is in frequent contact with children.

"Well, I had a little cold now and then, but I'm not a pill-taker," Swieca said.

He attributes his good health to regular workouts at a spa and a good deal of swimming, running and tennis.

"I exercise (but) not for muscles, just to stay loose," he said. "I like to stay active all the time."

That good health is one of the reasons Swieca chose this time to retire.

"I became 69 and I thought it's time to hang it up. I want to enjoy my good health while I have it," he said.

After talking it over with his wife, a school district employee for 20 years, the two decided to retire together. Loretta Swieca will also be leaving her job as a snack bar attendant at Upland Junior High School this month.

"We talked each other into going out," he said, adding that the pair plans to travel.

"This fall we're going to take a driving vacation — see the Cubs," said the former Chicago resident, whose license plate has read "Cubfans" for the last 10 years.

Before working for the school district, the couple operated a ranch that trained teen-age boys who had dropped out of school to be jockeys. Mrs. Swieca was cook and Swieca was dormitory father and athletic supervisor at the ranch, which has since closed down, he said.

The Swiecas plan to stay in their Ontario home, especially since their daughters, sons and grandchildren — all Cub fans also — live in the area. □

Victoria not only target of lot limit, says Dahl

By Marianne Aiken

A proposal to set a minimum lot size of 6,000 square feet in Rancho Cucamonga is not aimed at one developer, a councilman said.

Rancho Cucamonga Councilman Dick Dahl said last Wednesday his proposal to set the 6,000-square-foot minimum standard was not aimed at the William Lyon Co., developer of the Victoria planned community in Etiwanda.

Dahl said Jim Bailey, regional manager of the William Lyon Co., was "grandstanding" when he told The Daily Report that Dahl's proposal singled out the company. The William Lyon Co. is building the project, which will eventually have 7,706 homes when completed in 1993.

In May 22 editions of The Daily Report, Bailey said he felt the minimum lot size proposal was "unfair" and "uncalled for."

Dahl said that because his proposal would allow smaller subdivision lots with a conditional use permit, developers who have smaller lots planned would still be able to build on them.

"It will not stop them from developing small lots," Dahl said. "It would make them come

Devoted friends making young girl's life happier

By Suzanne Sproul

All 10-year-old Jennifer Joiner of Upland really needed was a friend.

Now she has three devoted ones.

Despite her handicaps resulting from hydrocephalus and cerebral palsy, Jennifer was leading a fairly normal life. Her loving family always included her in most activities. She attends Francis School in Ontario and is a member of the school's Girl Scout troop.

But something was missing. After an evaluation at the Diagnostic School for Neurologically Handicapped Children in Los Angeles, doctors determined that Jennifer needed more social contacts.

She needed to be around someone her own age and to enjoy the fun things most 10-year-old girls do.

And at about the same time Jennifer's doctors made their diagnosis, three Girl Scouts from the Spanish Trails Council Cadette Troop 1007 in Upland decided they wanted to design and earn a new badge — working with the handicapped.

The Scouts traveled to the Lemonwood-Westward Ho Stables in Upland, meeting place of the Therapeutic Equestrians, to observe how instructors work with the handicapped. It was there they met Jennifer.

Iris Joiner, Jennifer's mother, said her daughter was particularly restless that day but when she met the girls she perked up.

Mrs. Joiner said she could see the change in her daughter, so she tracked the Scouts down and asked for their help.

The Scouts, Kelly Landaker, Cathy Plamondon and Mary Snyder, have met with Jennifer one hour a week since February.

What started out as a Girl Scout project has turned into a friendship.

"We come here because it's fun and we enjoy spending time with her," said Cathy.

"Because of the combination of disabilities Jennifer has, she can't experience many things other girls her age do," Mrs. Joiner said.

"The one good thing about Jennifer's disabilities is that she has language. Many of her classmates at school don't, so she doesn't get a lot of socialization at school. The girls are the best thing that could have happened to her."

Assessments for two R.C. parks may change

By Marianne Aiken

A controversial assessment for two community parks in Rancho Cucamonga may be lowered.

The projected 1986-87 assessment, which would show up on December tax bills, is $33.50 per single dwelling unit of 1.5 acres or less, a $1.15 drop from the 1985-86 assessment.

The current levy is $34.65. The parks assessment district was created a year ago, encompassing more than 20,000 parcels, to finance the development of Red Hill and Heritage community parks.

Detached homes favored over condos

By Andrew Horan

From Fontana to Montclair, West Valley homeowners are turning away from condominiums in favor of single-family housing.

Spurred by lower interest rates and fast-paced new home construction, residents who want to own rather than rent are choosing detached housing over multiple unit projects, according to a developers and county officials.

"Right now, condominiums and townhouses are not very popular," said Jim Bailey, vice president of the William Lyon Co.

"I wouldn't build a condominium for anything," he added during a phone interview from his Rancho Cucamonga office.

While his firm recently finished a condominium project in Fullerton, "we don't have any ... in the Victoria (development) at this time," he said.

The condominium market, which many developers say was never strong in the county, may be growing even softer.

County Assessor R. Gordon Young announced last week that a preliminary study shows declining condominium values throughout the county.

Following a similar program in Los Angeles County, Young is encouraging owners of the county's 16,000 condominiums to apply for lowered assessments.

The Los Angeles program attracted more than 26,000 inquiries; more than 10,000 units were reassessed.

"I would think that the number eligible (for reassessment) in the county is probably less than 5 to 6 percent," said Assistant Assessor James Reed.

Lower interest rates are one reason condominium values may have fallen "from the West Valley out to Redlands," Reed explained.

Lower rates draw some residents out of condominiums and into single-family homes. That trend, Reed said, only further reduces the value of the condominiums.

"Because of lower interest rates, many people are buying single-family residences and many condominiums are being rented," he said.

"The minute you start renting condominiums, it puts a damper on the value of the remaining condominiums ... and this is what's happening in many of our areas."

And condominium construction was never very strong in the county, Reed said.

"San Bernardino has not experienced (condominium construction) to the extent that L.A. has," he said in a telephone interview.

"In the last two years, there have been practically zero condominium projects started," he added. "They're just not selling."

Reed explained that lower land values throughout the county make single-family residences more economically viable.

"The major thing that causes development is land values," he said. "What you're really doing is developing airspace. Where land values are high, it makes more sense" to build high density projects such as condominiums and townhouses.

"But in San Bernardino County, one of our assets right now is low land costs," Reed said.

Those low land costs allow developers to build single-family houses at prices competitive with condominiums.

"They'd have to sell a condo for at least $10,000 less than what I sell my little houses for," Bailey said.

Randall Lewis, senior vice president of Lewis Homes, agreed.

"You're not going to buy a condominium for $53,000 if you can buy a new house for $63,000," said Lewis, whose Upland-based firm has constructed more than 25,000 residences in the area.

"Only a couple hundred of them are condominiums," he said.

"Our market is fueled by a couple of different sources," Lewis continued. "Commuters ... and local people.

"Commuters aren't going to drive 30 minutes for something (a condominium) they can get close to work," he explained. "People who grew up in this area have expectations that 'I want to live in a house like the one I grew up in.'"

But Lewis does see a market for condominiums in the fast-growing West Valley.

"I don't think you'll see lots of condominiums for some time," he said, "but I do see condominium hybrids — detached housing that offers the flavor of single-family houses and the amenities of condominiums.

"I think you'll see more townhouse condominiums."

Even the developer of a condominium project Lewis called "beautiful" has turned to single-family house construction.

"The market is for single-family houses, and we're filling what we feel is a strong need and desire," explained Michael Greene, marketing director for Marlborough Developments in Los Angeles.

His firm constructed the 383-unit Marlborough Villa project in Rancho Cucamonga.

"It's a big development," Greene said in a phone interview. "It's very successful. It's always sold very well. We only have eight units left."

Despite that success, he said, "people are not as enthusiastic about condominiums. The trend has definitely been back to single-family houses."

Rancho Cucamonga fly control services begin; don't bug city

By Marianne Aiken

Fly control services began in Rancho Cucamonga Monday, but residents with fly problems should not call the city.

Instead, people bothered by insects should call the West Valley Vector Control District at 591-9835, said city Administrative Analyst Mark Lorimer.

"The district will dispatch someone from their office," Lorimer said.

The West Valley Vector Control District won a $37,000 contract last week to tackle the city's fly problems for one year.

after the City Council compared the district's fly-swatting power with that of the county's environmental health services department.

Lorimer said the district office will relay messages to a vector control biologist who will call people who have a fly complaint or stop by in person to check out the problem.

The biologist also will hold office hours at city hall in the early morning and late afternoon.

"Primarily the vector biologist will be in the field working with residents and businesses to attack the problem," Lorimer said. "Someone sitting behind a desk is not going to effectively address the problem."

The district will apply residential pesticides on an emergency basis to control residential fly outbreaks.

Five million chalcids, or fly parasites, will be released in the fall to kill fly eggs before they have a chance to grow into adult flies, Lorimer said.

Upland High takes first in writing contest

By Patrick McGreevy

Upland High School has taken first place in San Bernardino County's fifth annual Write-Off competition, beating out 15 other county schools.

The high school's five-member team scored the highest marks in competition, writing individually and collectively with their focus on Flannery O'Connor's short story, "A Good Man Is Hard To Find."

"I was very pleased. The students were very excited," said Calvin French, the head of the English department at Upland High School.

Those taking part in the competition representing Upland were Catherine Antoniak, a junior, and four seniors — Scott Banks, Franklin Bruno, Scot Reader and Pam Roessler.

The competition took place in three parts. The first part involved each student writing a half-hour essay based on study of the O'Connor short story before the May 17 competition.

Each school's five students then collectively had to write one essay on the O'Connor short story. Finally, the students individually were required to write something relating to the short story. The final contest allowed any form of writing including prose and poetry, French said.

He said that the five Upland team members are some of the top English students in the school and have participated in other competitions such as Academic Decathlon and College Bowl.

Following Upland in the standings was Barstow High School in second place, San Bernardino High School in third place and Montclair, Rim of the World and San Geronimo high schools, which all received honorable mention awards, according to Dennis Mobley, a spokesman for the San Bernardino County Superintendent of Schools office which sponsored the competition in Yucaipa.

This was the first year for a similar contest held the same day called Writing Carrousel, in which 23 junior high school teams competed.

Magnolia Junior High School in Chino won first place in the Writing Carrousel, followed by Shandin Hills Middle School in San Bernardino, which won second place and Moore Junior High School which won third.

occupational therapist. She warned the girls that working with Jennifer would not be a game.

"I told them that if they got involved they just couldn't come over here, pick her up like a doll and then put her down when they got tired. I told them they would be working with a person who has feelings. Yes, it started as a project, but now these girls are friends," Mrs. Landaker said.

"Jennifer does things for them that she won't do for me. The girls have been very faithful. They come once a week no matter if it's a holiday or not. I think all four girls have grown a lot," Mrs. Joiner said.

Linda Kraai, Jennifer's teacher, also sees changes in Jennifer.

"As Jennifer's teacher, I am especially grateful to Kelly, Cathy and Mary for the experience in socialization that they are providing for Jennifer. Because the children come to our school by bus from many communities, they don't have the opportunity for neighborhood play with their own school friends.

"They form wonderful strong friendships at school, but they aren't as likely to go to their classmates' houses to play. For this reason, the Girl Scout friends coming to Jennifer's home is an especially valuable experience," Kraai said.

"Jennifer wakes up Wednesdays and says, 'My Girl Scout friends are coming today.' They've become an important part of her life," Mrs. Joiner said.

"Yes, I like them. I like to play with dolls and to play ball," Jennifer said during a recent makeshift softball game in her front yard.

Jennifer has difficulties walking and must use braces and a walker. So she sits and swings the bat while the other three girls do the running, pitching and catching.

Mary said she enjoys helping Jennifer.

"It's not work, really. She likes to have fun like we do," Mary said.

Fund-raisers phoning for burn unit

By Philip Boas

Ontario Fire Department officials thought they had a scam on their hands Monday.

At least two local residents called the department asking if firefighters were running a telephone fund-raiser, said Rick Lebel, assistant fire chief.

"They said they received calls from Ontario Fire Department trying to raise money for a burn unit, and that (callers) asked for names, addresses and cross streets, so they could come by and pick up the money," said Lebel.

Because Ontario has no fund-raisers in operation, Lebel said his department contacted other West Valley fire departments to determine if residents were mistaking phone calls from another agency for Ontario Fire Department.

The other agencies, including Foothill Fire Department, told Ontario Fire officials they weren't soliciting donations by phone.

Or so they thought.

Later Foothill officials learned that a fund-raiser they planned to start in the coming weeks had already begun without their knowledge, said Mike Ploung, president of the Rancho Cucamonga Professional Firefighter's Association.

Ploung said 3-L Productions, based in Anaheim, contracted by the department to make phone solicitations for an upcoming fund-raiser, had started making calls to West Valley residents.

"I really expected to hear from them before they started making the calls," said Ploung.

He explained that Foothill is raising funds for the Alisa Rausch Burn Foundation in Sherman Oaks, but did not expect the calls to begin until 3-L called the department for the go-ahead.

Ploung said 3-L officials tried to call him last week, but because he was out the entire week, decided to proceed with the fund-raiser.

Callers for 3-L, now phoning residents throughout the West Valley, are not representing the fund-raiser as an Ontario Fire Department benefit, he said. "The public has gotten confused. I checked with people doing our promotion and they haven't used the 'Ontario Fire Department.'

Money gathered by the Foothill district will go to aid burn victims and community sports activities, he said.

Ontario students proud of helping renovate statue

By Stephen O'Connor

Diana Godfrey, a secretary at the Mountain View elementary school in Ontario who helped coordinate the students' Statue of Liberty fund-raiser, is very excited about watching the monument's unveiling during Liberty Weekend festivities.

"I can't wait to see it; I would love to go," she said. I am very glad to see how well we did and that our kids enjoyed it so much. The best part is that it (the unveiling) will mean so much more to them now and later on because of the special part they played in the restoration," said Godfrey.

Mountain View and Dona Merced and Floyd M. Stork schools in Rancho Cucamonga were among local campuses sponsoring fund-raisers to help renovate the statue.

Mountain View School participated in a nationwide effort through the Kellogg Cereal Corporation and public schools across the nation. According to Godfrey, the students gathered 5,000 box-tops from specially marked cereal boxes. For every school that reached that amount in the allotted three-month time period, the restoration fund received $100 from Kellogg.

"That may not seem like a lot, but schools across the entire United States participated in this program and hundreds of schools made the deadline," she said.

Dona Merced students made their effort to raise money for the statue a schoolwide pursuit.

"We coordinated it through the PTA," said Principal John Tate. "The PTA tied the fund-raiser into our school's mascot through the use of a poster. They (the PTA) also held socials and a singing festival to keep the children going.

"Because of the PTA's involvement, we raised $375 by gathering 900 pounds of aluminum and 415 pounds of plastic. They (the PTA) did a great job of keeping the kids motivated. It was quite an event," he said.

Don Clucas, a teacher at the Floyd M. Stork School, used the fund-raiser to help teach his sixth graders about the Statue of Liberty. "It's easy to incorporate something like that (the fund-raiser) with our study of the statue. Not only do we raise money for a good cause, but the kids will remember it (the study of the statue) longer because a special activity went along with it," he said.

"Last year's class brought in about $100 or so by collecting cans and bringing in their penkies and nickels," said Clucas. "It wasn't a whole lot, but we sent it in. Every bit counts," he said.

Upland Council PTA honors Honorary Service Award winners

With the theme of "Volunteers Light the Way," the Upland Council PTA, recognized community volunteers at its annual Honorary Service Award dinner in April.

The council honored those "who literally light up the lives of children and youth through the generous giving of their time, energies and love."

The California State PTA Honorary Service Award program was initiated in 1927 and was started to help teachers further their education through student loans and scholarships.

Those receiving the Honorary Service Award, which acknowledges the recipient's service to the children of the community, have funds donated in their name to this scholarship and loan program.

The recipients from each school in Upland were recognized after which the Upland Council presented a Continuing Service Award to Frank T. Guzowski. He has been active in PTA for many years, serving as treasurer of Sycamore PTA for several years and legislation chairman at several schools.

At the same time, he worked for the American Youth Soccer Organization as a coach and vice regional commissioner. He has been instrumental in the building and maintenance of the 11th Street soccer fields.

Guzowski's other activities include having served as treasurer of Scout Troup #623, on the Board of Directors of the Highlander Educational Foundation, the new Upland YMCA Advisory Board, Chairman of the Upland Parks and Recreation Committee and vice president of the Upland School District board of trustees.

"H.O.T. TIPS" (HOUSE OF TOOLS)

Large diameter dowels to be used as stretchers or rungs can be checked for straightness by rolling them over a flat surface. Any bow or twist in the dowel is then easily detected.

Many woodworking machines use pulleys & belts. The pulleys are secured to the shaft with a set screw that after a period of time tends to vibrate loose. To prevent this from happening, use two short set screws. Use the first to hold the pulley tight to the shaft, and the second on top of the first locking it in place.

A sheet of medium grit sandpaper glued to a plywood board will come in handy when sanding small parts. A cleat screwed to the bottom of the board will allow it to be held in a vise. Use rubber cement to glue the sandpaper to the board so that the paper can be removed and replaced when worn.

Two Ontario teen-agers have the model look

By Suzanne Sproul

Kari Pederson and La'Tonaya Bryant have the look.

Both 17-year-old Ontario women are semifinalists in 'TEEN magazine's 1986 Great Model Search, it's biggest annual hunt for new modeling talent.

Panels of judges reviewed photos of more than 28,000 young women. They were looking for something extra beyond mere smiles.

Because of their selection as semifinalists, Pederson's and Bryant's pictures appear in the May issue of the magazine, along with 14 other contest semifinalists in the Western Region.

But Bryant has been selected a "super semifinalist." She will continue in the nationwide search that will end June 10-19 with the final contest in Los Angeles.

Bryant's picture will appear in the June issue of the magazine.

The winner of the search will appear on the magazine's cover; will win $5,000 from Maybelline and an appearance in the company's ads; a $5,000 modeling contract with The Gillette Company; a new car; and a wardrobe.

"Obviously, both Kari and La'Tonaya are beautiful girls. La'Tonaya has been selected as a super semifinalist in her region and that's something great," said Jill Smolinski, magazine promotions coordinator.

"The magazine is looking for young women with a young and fresh look. Height wasn't a consideration because we're a teen magazine and many of the girls who appear in the magazine haven't reached their ultimate heights. The magazine wants someone who has the potential of being a cover girl model."

More than 28,000 young women, ages 12 to 18, submitted photos and applications to the contest.

The magazine divided the country into six regions and from there semifinalists and super semifinalists were selected, Smolinski said.

Bryant, a Chaffey High School student, is the daughter of Joseph Bryant Jr. and Cheryl Bryant.

"I'm so nervous. I can't believe this is happening," La'Tonaya Bryant said.

"As long as I have my family and friends are behind me, though, everything will be all right."

EDUCATION

OHS honoree

Shayla Whitney, a student at Ontario High School, won fourth place in the science/mathematics category in the Bank of America's Achievement Awards Program.

Chaffey High

Five Chaffey High School students participated in the Model United Nations held recently at Cal State San Bernardino.

The Chaffey students represented Saudi Arabia in the simulation attended by students from 17 other area schools.

Participating in the program from Chaffey were William Rivera, head of the delegation; Jeanette McGlothlin; Jason Sapp; Clark Douge; and Phil Watson. In the Model U.N., students met in committees, discussed problems, drafted resolutions and engaged in debates.

In the General Assembly session, where each member nation had a vote, resolutions were again debated and voted upon.

Chaffey's Saudi delegation wrote and sponsored a resolution banning any use or testing of atomic devices, with economic sanctions as penalties for nations which violate the proposed rule. The resolution was passed overwhelmingly.

Backing sought for anti-porn resolution

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Communities Against Pornography's president Richard Fortune asked the Upland City Council on Monday to consider endorsement of its proposed resolution against adult entertainment.

The citizens group plans to present to county supervisors a resolution restricting adult businesses. Although he was hoping for city endorsement Monday, Fortune was told he would have to bring the resolution back in writing for the council to study.

Fortune is executive director of the John Robert Powers Career College, a modeling school on the second floor of the building next door to T&A Video, an adult videotape and bookstore with video viewing booths at 2121 W. Foothill Blvd.

He had told the council at past meetings that his business is losing students because of the video store's presence.

The city and CAP members have frequently been at odds over the handling of T&A Video and the proposed ordinance, and Fortune's resolution made reference to some of their disagreements.

The CAP resolution would ban adult businesses from locating near a school, he said. Although, this is similar to a requirement in the law City Attorney Don Maroney is drafting, there has been bitter disagreement from modeling school officials over Maroney's definition of a school.

Maroney's requirement that the school have a "full curriculum" and a permanent location does not include the modeling school, which leases its space.

Another part of the resolution would require adult business to have a conditional use permit in order to operate, Fortune said.

The city has dropped enforcement of its requirement of conditional use permits for operations catering only to those 18 and older because of Garden Grove's loss of a courtroom battle over a similar permit condition.

The adult entertainment ordinance that Maroney is working on would govern the businesses instead of the permit.

But in the meantime, Fortune said, children under 18 are going in the store with adults.

The CAP resolution would also require that doors be taken off the video viewing booths, he said. There is a requirement in the proposed law.

has represented Elizabeth Enterprises for a number of years. This is the first time it has been charged with health and safety violations, he said.

Gerst added that he thinks nursing homes have been the focus of criticism lately.

Two nursing homes owned by the company in San Bernardino County, one each in Montclair and San Bernardino, have had no citations in the past year, according to a state health department representative.

Arraignment is scheduled for June 19. Each of the 31 misdemeanor counts could mean a fine of $2,500 to the business at 525 N. Central Ave. Speck and Turrell face up to six months in jail for each count; however, probation is likely, Rowse said.

in with a better design than they have now."

Dahl said he is more concerned with 477 acres of unimproved land that could potentially become small-lot subdivisions.

"It's not singling out Victoria," he said.

The city staff is expected to complete a comprehensive report on the minimum lot size proposal and the related issue of minimum dwelling unit sizes by August.

"I'm sure my proposal will be changed before it's all said and done," Dahl said.

Dahl said the William Lyon Co. would "profit on bad designs" since the company will not actually build on some of the lots in Victoria, but is planning on selling them.

"He may be referring to the fact that we're selling off some of the land to other builders," give-away thing. It's a land sale with ultimate control.

"We always intended to do that," Bailey said. "He (Dahl) should not be concerned about that. They can't do something the city won't approve." Bailey said Friday in answer to Dahl's comment.

Bailey said the community plan for Victoria guarantees that any future builder would have to adhere to the same standards that the William Lyon Co. agreed to in the community plan.

"The builder I sell to has to do just what I committed to do," Bailey said.

Bailey said he didn't know how much of Victoria would be sold off to other builders.

"We know we'll sell off a portion of it," Bailey said.

"There's no way of telling (how much) at this point. It has a lot to do with the market. It's not a

Valley View High School granted full accreditation

The Western Association of Schools and Colleges has announced that the Accrediting Commission for Schools has granted a full accreditation to Valley View High School.

The six-year accreditation term expires June 30, 1992.

The accreditation process involved the completion of a nearly one-year, comprehensive self-study of all aspects of the school's operation.

Upon completion of the self-study, a team of educators selected by the accreditation association spent three days at the school at 1801 E. Sixth St., Ontario, validating the study.

The visiting committee's report, which consisted of commendations and recommendations, was the basis for the commission's final action.

Major commendations were given to the school for:

- The implementation of an innovative and individualized team/advisor program to encourage, improve and reward student performance;
- The establishment of the Substance Abuse Intervention Program;
- The Young Mothers and School Aged Parent and Infant Development programs, which enable school age mothers to continue progress toward a diploma and to also participate in an enriched level of education in the critical areas of child care and human development;
- And the total staff for their dedication and commitment to the students and for providing a caring and supportive educational environment for them.

School officials believe the self-study and committee report provide the basis for a plan to strengthen and enrich the educational program.

This is the third full accreditation Valley View has received since its affiliation with the Western Association of Schools and Colleges began in 1974.

The association of Schools and Colleges is one of six regional organizations which accredit schools and colleges in the United States.

What will you be when you grow up?

The question, "What do you want to be when you grow up?" often as not illicit a blank stare and an empty "I dunno" from children.

To give their children a better idea how to answer that oft-asked question, Hermosa School teachers and parents collared 19 adults who live or work in Alta Loma to tell the 451 children what they do and why.

"Career Day exposes the children to different career opportunities that they might consider," said Bonnie McNamara, a second grade teacher who organized the event.

She had help from Kathy Wheatley, the school's community-parent representative.

"We've had great cooperation," Wheatley said while looking over the playground where children were gathered around a fire truck, an ambulance and a sheriff's patrol car.

"Generally, we picked the people most visible to the children," she added.

"We did our best to round up everyone from the TV star to the pizza maker."

"The theme this year," McNamara explained, "is the importance of education in choosing a career."

Around the playground and in 13 rooms, the speakers exhorted the children to use their school time wisely.

"You have to learn three things if you want to be an actor," Fred Mulvey told a gathering, "reading, English and concentration."

Mulvey, who is one of the two cowboy characters that appear in Millers Outpost commercials, also operates his own production company.

One of those listening to Mulvey's presentation was his son Kyle, who was also featured in a series of commercials Mulvey showed the children.

"Kyle looks weird" on camera, more than one of his classmates commented. But they were enthralled as they watched Kyle and his brother, Justin, repeat their lines over and over until they got them right.

After more than a dozen "takes," Mulvey showed the class the finished product.

The children cheered and shouted, "Bravo!"

"Shooting commercials is fun for the first ten minutes," Mulvey told the children. "But then it gets pretty boring."

"It takes about one full day just to shoot a 30-second commercial."

When he asked, "How many of you want to be actors," nearly 30 hands shot up in the air.

"Well, you all act every day," he said. "When your mom asks 'Did you clean your room today?' and you say 'Yes,' you're all little actors," Mulvey said.

There were plenty of other professions for the children to ponder.

Lou Manquen and Don McNeilly of Little Caesar's pizza parlor demonstrated how to throw together a peperonni pie.

"If you like pizza," McNeilly told a group of rapt first-graders, "you should know it's also good for you."

"It's probably one of the most nutritious foods you can eat today," he told the children, adding fuel to the fire burning in their bellies.

Other children watched Dr. Robert Kamansky use a Bugs Bunny doll to make "impressions" — synthetic mold — that dentists use to study and correct tooth ailments.

"We just made rubber, and now we're going to make plastic, using chemical reactions," Kamansky told the children gathered around him.

"If you want to be a dentist," he said, "you'll have to study chemistry and physics."

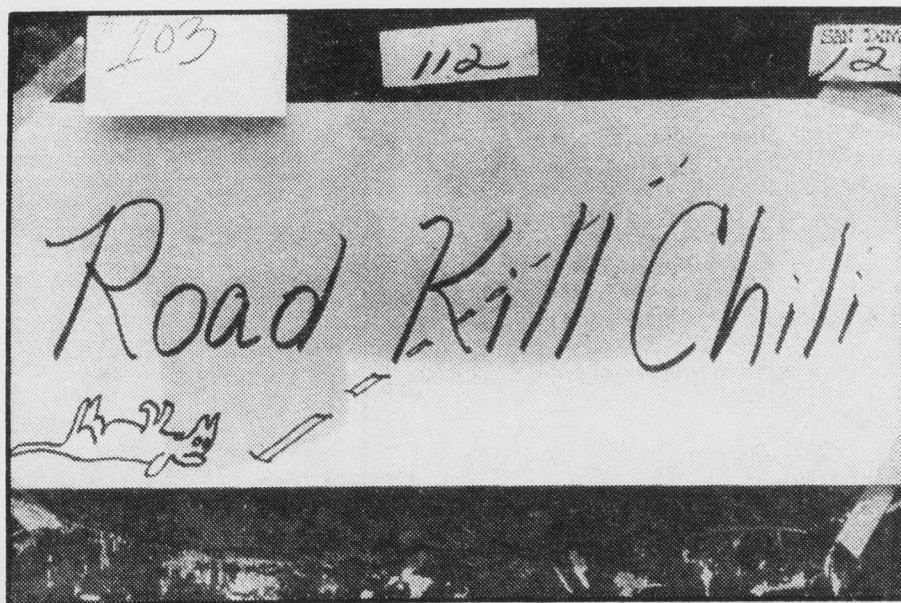

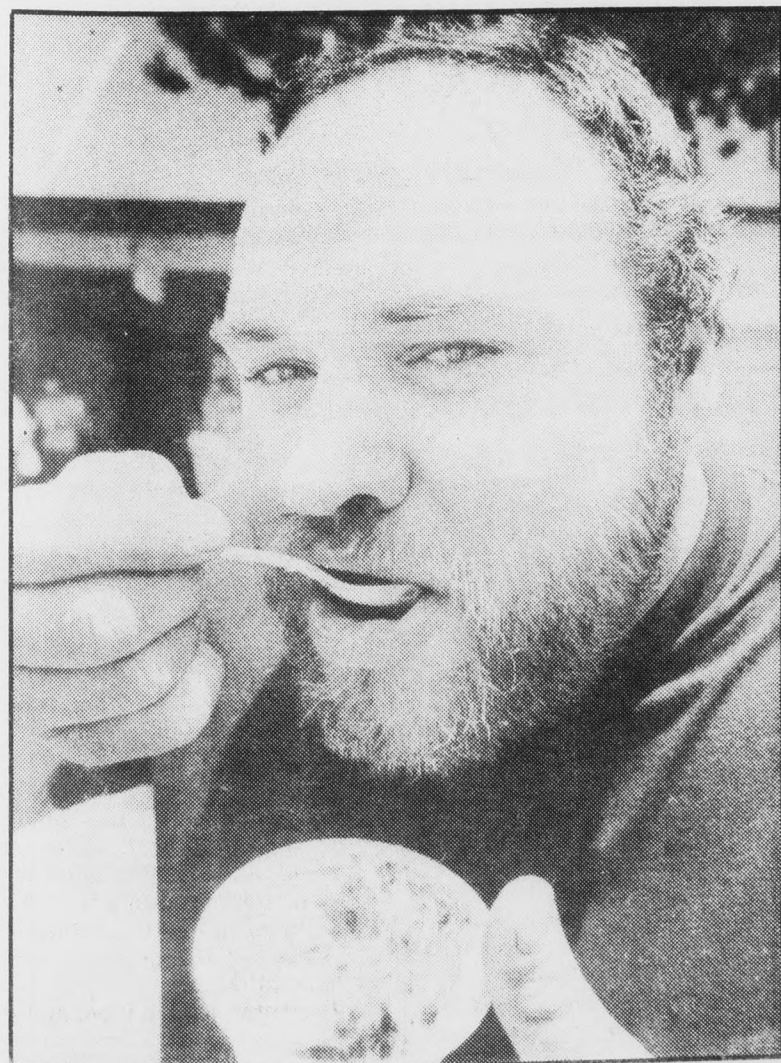

That idea did not go over well, but before too many protests were lodged, the bell signaling class change rang.

"We tried to get a variety (of people) that would be interesting to the children," McNamara said as students raced to the next demonstration.

"We wanted to give them motivation too." □

Representative Jerry Lewis, R-Redlands, explains his position on aid to the Nicaraguan rebels to senior economics and government students at Etiwanda High School, where he visited Friday.

Rep. Jerry Lewis visits students at Etiwanda High

By Marianne Aiken

Etiwanda High School students learned Friday that a letter really can make a difference.

When seniors from five classes at Etiwanda High School wrote letters recently on the Nicaraguan aid vote in Congress, Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Redlands, was so impressed he decided to visit the students in person.

The high school library was closed for about two hours Friday as students were ushered in to ask Lewis questions on issues ranging from the national debt to Prop. 51, and Central American politics.

Nancy Patterson, chairwoman of the school's social studies department, said her government and economics classes studied in depth the question of whether the U.S. should fund Contra rebels in their fight against the communist government of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega.

"Finally, they became so interested in it, they wanted to express their opinion," Patterson said.

The students eventually wrote more than 100 letters to Lewis and Representative George Brown, D-Riverside, as a class assignment. To get credit for the assignment, Patterson said, the letters had to express a clear opinion supported with detailed information.

Students questioned Lewis on a range of domestic and international issues.

"How do we know that if we support the Contras, they won't turn into a Sandinista government, or worse?" asked one student.

"We don't," Lewis said. The representative talked about the importance of continuing a dialogue with the Nicaraguans "at least to get them to the bargaining table."

Trying to find relief for pain is goal of society

By Suzanne Sproul

Pain and suffering bind everyone together, according to Eddy Hoffman.

Hoffman, spokeswoman for the National Pain Society, said research is needed to help understand why people feel pain and how they can deal with it.

Montclair neurosurgeon Dr. Benjamin Cox Jr. started the non-profit organization 10 years ago with the belief that researchers one day might develop a new treatment for pain.

"The society hopes to be able to answer some of the unanswered questions about why people suffer pain," Hoffman said.

"Pain has various levels from the physical pain caused by cancer to that of a scraped knee. The society would help provide funds to researchers interested in this field."

Currently in the development stages, the society is seeking individuals to serve as board members.

Prospective board members should be interested in fund-raising and in research and education dedicated to the relief of pain and suffering, she said.

"The society hopes to educate the public and researchers about pain, its causes and, possibly, how to prevent much of it," Hoffman said.

"We know that pain stems from injury to nerve endings to many psychological factors. If we can find out more about the causes, though, maybe we can find a new way of treatment. Who knows? There may be several answers."

The society would offer grants to hospitals, research labs and pain management centers, according to Hoffman.

Many pain management or research centers already exist in Southern California. Hoffman said Casa Colina Rehabilitative Hospital and the University of California at Los Angeles both have centers.

In order to have an effective organization, she said, board members should be as diverse as possible.

"For example, a police officer may see pain and suffering more than any researchers do," she said. "Trying to find some sort of relief for pain is the society's number one goal."

Hoffman said modern medical technology can help provide more answers today than it could 10 years ago.

"The causes of pain, to date, have been speculation. There have been no firm answers," she said.

"Nobody likes to hurt. I think people are more aware of pain today. They're also more aware of their physical being."

Hoffman said she is available to discuss the goals of the society to groups.

Anyone interested in the organization can write her at the National Pain Society, 9645 Monte Vista Ave., Suite 301, Montclair, Calif., 91763; or call 625-6502.

Chaffey College employees will work four-day summer week

For the fifth year in a row, Chaffey College employees will work a four-day week this summer.

The four-day work week will start Monday, July 7, and be effective through Sunday, Sept. 7.

Summer classes are offered Monday through Thursday at the college, so the college will essentially be closed Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the summer.

The Chaffey College chapter of the California School Employees Association (CSEA) voted to approve the shorter work week May 8, and the move was approved by the governing board last Thursday.

"It's technically negotiable but we've never had a problem with it because people get another day off," CSEA President Dixon Wolf said of the four-day plan.

"This time the vote for the four-day work week was relatively close," Wolf said, because employees had some concerns about how the 10-hour work days would affect their health.

"I think people are a little more concerned with their stress and energies that are being put out in a 10-hour day," Wolf said.

said the lower annual assessment is possible because of increased development in the city.

Wasserman also said the city is following through on a promise by lowering the assessment.

"Our estimate was that we'd be able to lower the fee," he said. "It will definitely come down, which is a promise the council made."

The parks assessment was the subject of a legal battle earlier this year. The head of a political action committee that took the city to court over the assessment called the lower levy a move in the right direction.

"Anytime you lower taxes, that's always a good direction," said John Christensen, chairman of the Cucamonga Citizens Coalition Political Action Committee (CCC-PAC).

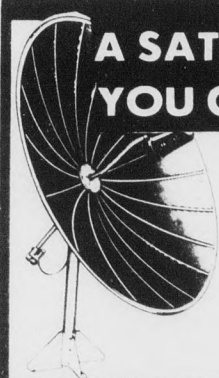

"I think what happened is they realized it's not going to be as expensive as they thought," Christensen said. "Keep in mind we weren't against parks, but they needed better planning, and maybe that's going in effect."

CCC-PAC turned in a petition Jan. 16 with more than 6,000 signatures to get an initiative on the ballot asking for two-thirds voter approval on any city assessment after April 1, 1985.

The drive failed when City Attorney James Markman ruled the petitions invalid, saying they would limit the taxing powers of the city. A county Superior Court judge agreed with him March 17, after CCC-PAC took City Clerk Beverly Authalet to court to get her to continue processing the petitions.

There will be a public hearing on the reduced assessment Wednesday at the City Council meeting, which starts at 7:30 p.m. at the Lions Park Community Center, 9161 Base Line Road.

Budget proposal may affect family planning clinics

By Kimberly Heinrichs

A state budget proposal that includes restrictions on abortions would affect state-funded family planning clinics, but has little chance of passing, according to a Planned Parenthood official.

Dr. Hugh Anwyl, executive director of the Los Angeles County Planned Parenthood organization, called the budget measure "stupid."

It would require students to get written parental permission before leaving school for an abortion and would stop state-funded clinics from referring clients to abortion services.

Although Planned Parenthood has no clinics in San Bernardino County, about 10 percent of the clients of its former Pomona clinic were from the West Valley, Anwyl said.

The Pomona clinic at 207 W. Pearl St. was closed at the end of April when it lost its lease, he said. The organization hopes to find a new location in Pomona by September, he said. In the meantime, area clients are being referred to the El Monte clinic.

A check of other family planning services in the area revealed that no other services will be affected should the budget pass intact, as they are not state funded.

Earlier last week, the budget was stalled in the state Assembly because of the abortion restriction measure. However, the Senate passed its version last Tuesday, 34-1, as part of a 1986-87 $37.5 billion budget proposal.

Differences between the two versions of the budget will be resolved in a joint conference and a unified proposal will be sent to Gov. Deukmejian by June 15.

But Anwyl thinks the anti-abortion measure will be dropped before then. Noting that similar legislation has failed in the past, he said this will probably fail also.

If it does pass, he said, Planned Parenthood will not give up either its services or state funding without a fight.

"If it passed, one of the options would be to take legal actions in the courts," he said.

"Fifty-five percent (of our teen-aged clients) come with the support and, certainly the consent, of their parents," he said. "Twenty percent wish they could, but have communication problems with their parents."

Anwyl said that despite efforts of the Legislature, minors will still need Planned Parenthood's family planning and abortion services.

"It's not going to regulate sexual activity," he added. "I wish they would devote their energies to some positive action. They're under the delusion that they can control people's behavior."

In addition, Anwyl noted that 70 percent of Planned Parenthood's clients are state-subsidized. He said that the state would actually save more money by providing subsidized family planning and abortion services to these people, rather than paying for raising the children they would otherwise have.

"Lives are being blighted by unwanted pregnancy," he added. "You can't even put a figure on those costs."

The director added that he would like to see more money channeled their way in order to open up clinics in growing areas like San Bernardino County, specifically the West Valley.

"As I see it, obviously it's an area we'll have to pay more attention to," he said.

Grieving over loss of beloved pet very natural

By R.G. Elmore
Copley News Service

Q. Our 16-year-old female Pomeranian died recently and my wife is grieving as if it were one of our children.

Is this normal behavior — do other people grieve over the loss of their pets? How can I help my wife through this very difficult period?

A. People who grieve over the loss of a beloved pet should not consider themselves mentally unstable. It is normal to experience intense grief. This is especially true if the person has owned the pet for a long time or if the pet has served as a substitute family. Individuals living alone with a pet are more likely to feel the loss of their animal companions.

Grieving often includes a feeling of loneliness, the urge to cry, feeling of shock, loss of appetite, and being unable to sleep. Sometimes these symptoms last for only a short period of time, while other individuals grieve for weeks.

Friends and family members should be sensitive to each other's feelings. Some pet owners are forced to feel ashamed about their grieving over the loss of their animals because of inappropriate reactions of friends and family. Many well-meaning people express amazement that anyone could be so upset over the death of a mere animal. Some even give the impression that such behavior is childish and not appropriate for adults.

Many methods to lessen or overcome intense grief following the death of pets have been advocated by grief experts. Talking about the pet's death openly is extremely important. The family members should express their feelings and sense of loss. If a pet has been ill for a long period of time, the owner should take comfort that he or she provided love and support through the last days. People around the owner should emphasize the love and care given to the pet before its death.

Generally the death of a pet should not be hidden from children. They need to know the truth regarding their companion and to express their feelings to understanding adults. Parents should answer questions children ask about their pet's death. It is sometimes helpful if the child participates in the burial.

It is not advisable to immediately replace a longtime companion with a new, frisky young pet. Replacing a pet should be done only after careful consideration and thought. Mourning time is needed — it takes time to overcome grief.

Mourning the death of a pet is normal and natural. Death is inevitable and we should all look forward to it realistically and prepare ourselves for the loss we will feel. The fear of losing a pet through death should not hinder our pleasure or companionship while the pet is living. Your veterinarian can give you additional advice regarding the loss of your pet.

Two Etiwanda High School athletes are checked by staff members of the sports clinic at Pomona Valley Hospital. Dr. Stephen Broyley checks the ankle of ninth grader Heidi Russell (left), while Earl Lilly's knee is tested by Dr. Donald Huber. Prospective athletes were recently given their physicals at the clinic.

Sports clinic helps prevention of injuries

By PAUL ARNOLD

It is preventive medicine with a sports-oriented twist. It seeks to identify potential problem areas before they become real problems.

And it may just keep dozens of athletes — from budding superstars to weekend enthusiasts — on the playing field and out of the sick bed.

The Sports Medicine Center at the Pomona Valley Community Hospital (PVCH), in its third year of existence, serves area athletes with an emphasis on prevention and diagnosis, as well as fast, safe rehabilitation of sports injuries when the occur.

Etiwanda High School was among two high schools that recently took advantage of the center's annual offering of the center's annual offerings of low-cost physicals for athletes hoping to participate next fall.

A dozen PVCH staff members were joined by 30 physical therapists, nurses and support personnel in giving comprehensive physicals to aspiring participants.

Damon Watson, an upcoming junior candidate for the Etiwanda football team, had mixed feelings about his trip to the doctor.

"I don't like hospitals," said

Watson with emphasis. "You wonder whether or not you're going to make it. But I'm glad I came. You find out what kind of condition your body is in."

Because PVCH personnel volunteered their time for the physicals, each athlete paid just $10.

Consistent with the center's emphasis on prevention, the physicals are offered in the spring, giving the athletes plenty of time to remedy any potential problem areas.

"It's better to know of any problems now, rather than a week before the season starts," said Etiwanda football coach Larry Tisdale. "This way, we've got all summer to work out any problems that may arise."

Each of the athletes went through 11 stations, beginning with an area where each student's family health history was probed.

The screenings included in-depth examinations of the musculo-skeletal system, heart/lungs, abdomen, genitourinary system, posture, flexibility and percent body fat.

"We're not looking for injuries as much as we are trying to prevent them from arising," said Dr. Glenn Garlin, one of the doctors checking the athletes last week.

Joe Baumgaertner, administrative director of the center, explained its origins and purpose.

"The physical therapy clinic at the hospital has always treated these injuries, but establishing the Sports Medicine Center just formalized it," Baumgaertner said. "High school principals had come to us for help in the area of sports injuries several times. They gave us some direction and we responded. We saw a need out there and we filled it."

Baumgaertner said the center has treated approximately 2,500 athletes of all ages since opening. High school athletes, he explained, are usually treated at no charge (excluding insurance deductibles) to the family.

"We usually accept whatever the insurance company will pay for the treatment," he said.

Staffed predominately by Pomona-area orthopedists, the center is open Monday through Friday at 4:30 p.m. Closing times vary, depending on how busy the center on a given day.

Athletes can often get same-day examination and treatment for their injuries — a particular advantage for a competitor who can ill-afford a lengthy stay on the sidelines. Family doctors, in contrast, often have full appointment schedules several weeks in advance — thus contributing to an athlete's time out of action.

Said Baumgaertner, "The center tries to return athletes to action as quickly as possible, but not by playing them while they are still hurt. Our doctors are intimately associated with sports injuries. They are in better position to diagnose and treat sports injuries than many family doctors."

Fewer than five percent of the athletes fail to pass the physicals. Most of those who don't pass, fail for minor reasons. A fairly common example is the vision test, which some of the students fail because they forget their glasses. But not all of the center's findings on the high school athletes are routine.

During the exams, one of the athletes was found to have a malunited wrist fracture. The injury, apparently several years old, had never been treated properly.

Tisdale, an obvious firm believer in the center, explained its utility for the Etiwanda football team.

"We used to have some problems with knee injuries because we didn't have the proper leg extension weight machine," Tisdale said. "The center helped us to recognize this problem and deal with it. We have the right machine now."

In the past, a common finding among athletes examined at the center was the need for more strength in the quadriceps, according to Tisdale. Thus, doctors recommended more emphasis on power squats in Etiwanda's weightlifting program for football players.

Dr. Charles Magistro, head of the physical therapy department at PVCH, said patients for the center come from as far away as Pasadena and Fontana.

"This is a very forward step for this area," Magistro said. "The treatments are tailored specifically for athletes and sports injuries. Our clinic allows us to treat athletes far more dynamically (than a family doctor might)."

And, Magistro added, the benefits are often mutual.

"A lot of good things are happening as a result of all the recent research in sports medicine," Magistro said. "We learn a lot."

"IMPORTANT NOTICE"
IF YOUR PROPERTY IS IN FORECLOSURE BECAUSE YOU ARE BEHIND IN YOUR PAYMENTS, IT MAY BE SOLD WITHOUT ANY COURT ACTION, and you may have the legal right to bring your account in good standing by paying all of your past due payments plus permitted costs and expenses within the time permitted by law for reinstatement of your account, which is normally five business days prior to the date set for the sale of your property. No sale date may be set until three months from the date this notice of default may be recorded (which date of recordation appears on this notice). This amount is $2,815.40 as of May 11, 1986, and will increase until your account becomes current. You may not have to pay the entire unpaid portion of your account even though full payment was demanded, but you must pay the amount stated above. However, you and your beneficiary or mortgagee may mutually agree in writing prior to the time the notice of sale is posted (which may not be earlier than the end of the three-month period stated above) to, among other things, (1) provide additional time in which to cure the default by transfer of the property or otherwise; or (2) establish a schedule of payments in order to cure your default; or both (1) and (2).

Following the expiration of the time period referred to in the first paragraph of this notice, unless the obligation being foreclosed upon or a separate written agreement between you and your creditor permits a longer period, you have only the legal right to stop the sale of your property by paying the entire amount demanded by your creditor.

To find out the amount you must pay, or to arrange for payment to stop the foreclosure, or if your property is in foreclosure for any other reason, contact: Jennifer Seplak, Citicorp Savings, 180 Grand Avenue, 5th Floor, Oakland, CA 94604, (415) 891-8600.

If you have any questions, you should contact a lawyer or the government agency which may have insured your loan. Notwithstanding the fact that your property is in foreclosure, you may offer your property for sale, provided the sale is concluded prior to the conclusion of the foreclosure. Remember, YOU MAY LOSE LEGAL RIGHTS IF YOU DO NOT TAKE PROMPT ACTION.

In addition to the amount stated above, should any prior taxes, liens, or encumbrances be delinquent or become delinquent, and the loan can be reinstated, said delinquencies must be cured as a condition of reinstatement.
